

Everett C. Oman Scholarship

Everett Carl Oman

4.15.1916 - 12.1.2001

Anacortes, Washington

Everett C. Oman was born and raised in Boscobel, Wisconsin. His adventuresome spirit lured him to Washington State in the mid-1970s. Everett was a workaholic, having been a farmer, milking machine dealer, farm implement dealer, refrigeration and motor repairman, lumberman, woodsman, home builder, electrician, mechanic, plumber, and backhoe owner/operator, coal dealer, and stoker serviceman. Although described by many as an eccentric, a loner, and an outcast, his son, John, characterizes him as misunderstood and fiercely independent, a thinker, inventor, writer, realist, river man, sailor, traveler, naturalist, father, teacher, student, provider, environmentalist, poet, individualist, visionary, and philanthropist. He was a history buff, a ham, and a dancing fool who enjoyed his visits to the Senior Center, writing, and--most of all--the Cook Road dances.

Everett regretted not being able to attend college himself. The majority of Everett's estate has been placed in a charitable trust, dedicated to the funding of educational scholarships. Everett C. Oman Scholarships will be made available to qualifying students in Anacortes, Washington, and in Boscobel, Riverdale, and Wauzeka-Steuben high schools in southwest Wisconsin. Recipients must enroll in STEM programs at state-supported, non-denominational schools.
